Count of Pregnant Women and Single Women with Dependent Children Provided Substance Use Disorder Treatment

Services to:
Pregnant Women	3
Single women with Dependent Children	17

Northeastern Center strives to identify substance use issues during pregnancy, to provide early intervention and treatment to women to ensure healthy pregnancies and healthy infants. Without early interventions, the effects of substance use while in utero can cause life-long challenges. Additionally, untreated substance use disorders negatively affect the family unit. To be most effective, providers must be aware of the unique treatment barriers that single women with dependent children may face.
